

Read the Gospels Every Month

In Jesus' day, a disciple (or talmid, as the Jews called them) described one who followed his rabbi 24/7, hanging on every word that he spoke and scrutinizing everything he did. The Jews had a saying that to follow a rabbi was to "be covered in the dust of his feet." The goal of such a disciple was beyond merely acquiring the knowledge that the rabbi possessed, but rather to become like the rabbi. (Luke 6:40) The focus of these daily Bible readings is to follow in the footsteps of those long-ago disciples immersed in the words, actions, and world of our Rabbi and Master, Jesus Christ.

As you will note, most months of the year will have two or three extra days to make up for days missed or for further reflection.
